ICOS

The Client is a 24 Ghanaian woman who is an international student at the university of Sunderland who came to ICOS due to being unemployed needing help writing her CV and help searching for a job. She was interested in a job role in a health field or a job with the interest of teaching as well as jobs in sales and retail. The client has completed course in health topics such as a level 1 in sexual health awareness and a level 2 in common Health conditions. The client also expressed a willingness to take part in voluntary work to aid in getting a job. With her newly completed training her CV was updated to reflect the update in their qualifications allowing for a new job search where ICOS were able to pick out multiple job options. Through this she was able to apply for a cleaning job which resulted in her getting an interview with. Which ICOS was able to help her prepare for via a over the phone session on interview skills and preparation. The client was able to secure that job as a part time cleaner in Washington.
